BACKGROUND:

Founded in 1993, the Marilyn Horne Foundation is devoted to the vocal recital, and to exceptionally gifted young vocal recitalists. Its mission is to encourage, support and preserve the art of the vocal recital through the presentation of recitals and related educational programs in communities across the United States.

ABOUT ISABEL LEONARD:

Mezzo-soprano Isabel Leonard is making waves in the world of classical music, and recently made her Metropolitan Opera debut singing the role of Stefano in Roméo et Juliette. She is a native New Yorker and received both her Bachelor and Masters of Music at the Juilliard School, and studies with Edith Bers. She has also studied with Marilyn Horne, Brian Zeger, Warren Jones, and Margo Garrett.
